

THE MAGAZINES

The Wide World Magazine for November contains a number of interesting articles and stories dealing with different parts of the world. There is a fully illustrated paper on "The Troglodytes of Dieppe," another on "Wild Boar Hunting in New Zealand" and a third dealing with "The Romance of Opium-Smuggling." Captain G. D. Haigh, late of the Matabeleland Relief Force, relates a gruesome story of a friend of his who was "Buried Alive by a Lion." E. D. Burrows describes his experiences while "On the Trail of the Shovel-Nosed Shark" and Dr. Maximus Neumayer continues the account of his life "Among the Indians of Bolivia." The Trials of a Tenderfoot is amusing and "The Story of the Carved Peach-Stone," by Commander J. Macnab, full of mystery and thrills. Altogether the contents of the November Wide World are fully up to the mark and continue to bear witness to the undoubted fact that "Truth is Stranger than Fiction."

The November Strand contains a very striking article entitled "A Vision of Gold" by the well-known English statistician, John Holt Schooling. Mr. Schooling bases his article on a single cent placed out at five per cent compound interest, A. D. 1. The sum which this single cent would amount to at the close of the year 1910 is almost inconceivable. One illustration alone will suffice to show the colossal growth of an American cent in 1,910 years. The value if turned into specie would be sufficient to make 26,000 millions of spheres of solid gold, each one being equal to the planet Earth in volume! Another article of interest is contributed by Charles Frohman on "Play Writing." There are stories by W. W. Jacobs, Barry Pain, Richard Marsh, Arthur Morrison, Tom Callon and other well known writers. "Some Dickens Discoveries" is an article dealing with the origin of persons and places to be found in Dickens's works. The "Character Studies of Well-known People" is an interesting novelty.

BOY SCOUTS IN RUSSIA

Tiny Warriors Go Through Their Evolutions Under the Eye of the Emperor.

The review of the boy scouts by the czar at St. Petersburg was a delightful spectacle. The vast expanse of the Mars field was checkered by the scarlet, green, white and khaki uniforms of the tiny warriors, whose evolutions were watched with delight by immense crowds. The bright sunshine was tempered by a breeze.

As the emperor and his suite rode down the lines, greeting each detachment, the boys answered in Russian soldier fashion: "We wish good health to your majesty." Each separate command then demonstrated its special aptitudes. To the accompaniment of their own bands they went through drills and gymnastic exercises. The Tashkent battalion produced some excellent fencers; the Odessa contingent, 1,000 strong, showed admirable training; there was a football team, which kicked the ball among the imperial suite, much to the czar's amusement; and small firemen climbed dummy houses. The march past of the 6,000 boys lasted 40 minutes. One little drummer was five years old. A tiny brigade had a tiny ambulance drawn by a donkey. The czar, who was hugely delighted, thanked each detachment, and after the review expressed his gratitude to the officers and the schoolmasters. The movement is growing rapidly. Russia will soon have 200,000 boy soldiers.

KEEP SHOULDERS STRAIGHT.

Comparatively few people have really evenly balanced shoulders; there may not be much difference according to the casual observer, but a dressmaker or tailor will make no secret of the fault. Of course, padding is resorted to, but this does not always remedy the fault. The worse the deformity the more patient and persistent effort is required. Because the right shoulder dips just a trifle, do not ignore the fact, for middle age will find the trouble to have progressed considerably. Take your place in a stiff backed chair and practice raising and lowering the higher shoulder for 20 to 30 times a day. In fact, practice this exercise whenever the occasion will permit. Keep the back erect against the back of the chair, and you will soon see an improvement.

13. The Appliance gives comfort to the horse, as it has recirculating coil springs that act as an equalizer and cushion for the shoulders and prevent galled shoulders under all conditions.
14. The Appliance gives comfort to the driver, as the springs consume the sudden jerking and snatching of the horse just as the buggy springs consume the jolting.
15. The Appliance prevents sore backs by lifting the shafts and removing all pressure from the back when pulling.
16. The Appliance diminishes the draft by giving a direct line of draft from the shoulders to the axle.
17. No man can consider seriously the danger there is in driving, when meeting automobiles, street-cars, trains, etc., without feeling the sense of duty in providing means of safety for himself or family, when it can be done so efficiently and at so little cost.
